

Ouranian Cyclops

Kronos

You, three brothers born with only one eye
Exile became your life
Ouranos your father decided to get rid of you
Fearing you to turn against him
With you deformed appearance
And your incredible strength
Hurled you down in the tartar
To secure his celestial supremacy

Ouranian Cyclops
Nameless dwellers of hell
Banished because threatening
Divinities preferred to expel you
From the Olympian kingdom

Twice banished, twice released
First time delivered by your mother Gaia
Brother Kronos and the Titanic horde
To get over with the Ouranian reign

Once your father defeated
Your brother enthroned
And your job carried out
In the struggle for Olympus sovereignty
Kronos, to keep his domination on the kingdom
Sent you back in the Tartar

Ouranian Cyclops
Nameless dwellers of hell
Banished because threatening
Divinities preferred to expel you
From the Olympian kingdom

Second time, Zeus
Survivor of Kronos' infanticide feast
Came to save you from your jail
Grateful to you saviour
You'll forge lightning, thunder and thunderbolt
Who'll strike the infantivore father

To commemorate
Your primordial role in this strife
Your weapons, (lightning) "asteropes"
(thunder) "brontes" and (thunderbolt) "arges"
Became your names

Grateful to those who emerged you from obscurity
You gave to Hades an invisibility helmet
To Poseidon his trident
And to Zeus thunder and lightning

Lyrics provided by <https://www.songlyrics.band/>