

Remember the Ride

Perfect Stranger

He spent his days with horses
And his nights with Rosalee
He spent his pay on whiskey
That was made in Tennessee
As I was growing up
He spent a lot of time with me
When I'd ask him about women
He'd just grin
He said, "Son I know horses
Like the back of my hand"
He said, "Some were born to run
Some will stomp, you just for fun
And some have got the devil
In their eyes"
"There's some that you can trust
Some will leave you in the dust
And the wild ones will shake you up inside
But you'll always remember the ride"
Like him I rode some horses
Some were fast and some were slow
I've known my share of women
I've seen 'em come, I've seen 'em go
The horses I could handle but the womens got me thrown
Now I smile when I remember that old man
Because he knew more than horses
Like the back of his hand
He said, "Some were born to run
Some will stomp you just for fun
And some have got the devil
In their eyes"
"There's some that you can trust
Some will leave you in the dust
And the wild ones will shake you up inside
But you'll always remember the ride"
He said, "Some were born to run
Some will stomp you just for fun
And some have got the devil
In their eyes"
"There's some that you can trust
Some will leave you in the dust
And the wild ones will shake you up inside
But you'll always remember the ride
Yeah, you'll always remember the ride"

Song Discussions is protected by U.S. Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.

Lyrics provided by <https://www.songlyrics.band/>