

Dispatch the Troops

Matisyahu

Daughter of Zion
Once precious princess
Left her father's house
To walk streets that never rest
Maybe they'll hear me in the metropolis
So I'm sending out an SOS
Fighting with her Ta
She wants out of this mess
And those big city lights
Might brighten up the darkness
You know that I'm tired and you know that I'm stressed
You can't stop me and you can't stop this
You could call the police try to make an arrest
Today is the day that I repossess
Leaving on the first bus that I can get
Now its rings around the eyes sopping wet from rain droplets
Window shopping for some solace
No address and penniless
That's the price that you pay for running away from the stress
Feeling the pain like the dance by the DJ
Reminds me of a time when things were ok
Frightened by her own shadow
Now she wants to go home
Many names for the one G-d
Trotting on, though the facade
You were all my children
Got a dig for that feeling
Love will break through the concealment
Strip away the serpent's skin
We came to win
Dispatch the troops
Send out the captain
My gem is held captive in the dungeon
Don't come back again until you end the mission
If it takes a long time
Don't lose the vision
If you're stuck
Check the blueprint
Look within Reflection
Got to find the rhythm
Won't you please return child

Where you been?

She says I can't come home because he won't let me in

And besides we don't need no more friction

Used to look so nice, how'd you get so thin?

With a heart like ice, it's a heart of sin

Skin white like a ghost with a pale complexion

Pray to G-d for the dead we need resurrection

Don't you know wherever you go thick and thin

You are still my children

Since you've been gone my soul's been hearting

Wondering through this world

We are all just boys and girls

Many names for one G-d

Trotting on, through the facade

Song Discussions is protected by U.S. Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.

Lyrics provided by <https://www.songlyrics.band/>