

Fathom

Awaken

no, we are not enslaved within the boxes of a constant set of guidelines to practice with man made pretenses while watching from the sidelines there's a difference between good intentions and a love that never burns out this mystery beyond imagination and reality that overshadows doubt so could you ever fathom what it's like to live forever?
cause when the day you die you'll find it's real...
(watch it blow you away so you can feel) to be inside a moment that this time could never sever, (don't cut me out)
and a peace the world could never kill... we are not imprisoned by the lies written to distort creation inside this walking vessel where time is always of the essence there's a place where temporary feelings calm desires and mask passions when life reaches for a more permanent opposite reaction it's in the nature of humanity to fall there's no more time, i feel the pressure when i walk this line that doesn't mean you have to lose it all reach the top and then just let go, i guess i never really had control this new freedom will rise within to choose which way to live again

Lyrics provided by <https://www.songlyrics.band/>